

Abstract

Systems and methods for computing cash flows are described. In some embodiments, the systems and methods compute cash flows of taxpayers based on applying user computation rules and user options for treating recurring and non-recurring cash flow items to verified tax data and verified financial data of the taxpayers.